The UWA School of Music and St George’s College 3rd annual Summer Music Academy, offers talented young musicians from across Australia and Asia the opportunity to immerse themselves in a week of practical music making and fun.

With orchestral, band, keyboard, percussion and vocal streams, and supported by outstanding nationally and internationally recognised conductors and tutors, the Academy aims to nurture the musicianship and ensemble skills of high school and tertiary students through large and small ensemble rehearsal and performance.

The Academy has both residential and non-residential streams, with residential students enjoying the unique experience of college life at St George’s College.

Located next to the Swan River, the picturesque grounds of both facilities provide the ideal place for students to interact, rehearse and play music.

The Academy is specifically aimed at young musicians who have a passion for making music and refining their craft and offers a unique opportunity to receive world-class instruction at a world top 100 University!

The Academy is open to secondary school and tertiary students aged 15-25, however younger students may attend if accompanied by a parent or guardian.

If you’re a young musician with a passion for making music and refining your craft, this camp is for you.
